

Spring/Summer 2010

THE LATEST ON DESIGN AND STYLISH LIVING

Spring brings inspiration fueled by the renewed energy of the season. It is the perfect time to bring your dream projects to life. After all, your home is your most important asset. As an Interior Designer, I love the opportunity to work with clients who trust my design aesthetic and encourage me to implement a bold vision for their space. My latest project was a perfect canvas for inspired and exciting design.

A celebrity client acquired a 1400 square foot apartment on the Upper West Side. While the initial plan was for small improvements of a bathroom and furniture acquisition for the living room, the project expanded into a total high-end renovation of 2 bathrooms, extensive designs for new built-in cabinets, new lighting throughout, all new doors and windows, including window treatments, and new furniture and decorative items for the entire space. A vibrant color palette and seductive textures authentically mirror the colorful and edgy personality of the client. The photos shown here were taken the moment that major design elements were completed and are not fully accessorized with art and objects as intended.

My approach with any client pursuing an Interior Design project, regardless of size or scope, is to guide them through the entire design process so that they can make informed choices. My role is to ensure that results are achieved as planned with high quality standards and meticulous attention to detail. Of course, I always seek to reflect the character of the owners and at the same time support and enhance their lifestyle with unique, thoughtful, functional and timeless urban contemporary style.
